Reading passage

PHONICS REVIEW digraphs Reading Passage

Read the passage and circle the words with digraphs.

The Too-Silent Ghost

Gus the ghost was a big shock, but not in the typical ghostly way. While the other phantoms could whoosh quickly, clank chains loudly, and whizz through walls, poor Gus struggled to keep up. He wasn't a speedy or scary ghost. Rather, he was a very clever ghost who became a technology whizz. He had his own shed filled with interesting gadgets.

When it was time for the ghosts to go out haunting, Gus always looked forward to seeing what new technology the people in the town had. He would check out the new phones and play around clicking buttons on tablets left on kitchen benches at night.

Even though Gus didn't scare people in the normal way the other ghosts did, by whoosh along and sending chills down people's spines, he didn't give them a fright. In the morning, people would check their phones, computers, and tablets only to find strange apps open or the battery completely drained! Sometimes, when Gus was feeling really mischievous, he would steal some technology and take it back to his shed. He always returned it after a few nights!

Chuck the Duck

There once was a duck named Chuck who filled his day in interesting ways. Every morning, when clock struck 8, Chuck waddled over to the bench. Here, he had a collection of beautiful shells that he spent the morning cleaning. He loved to see them shine!

After morning tea, Chuck waddled out to the garden. He tended to the shrubs and plants. His garden had lots of fruits and vegetables to pick. Chuck liked to pick some that were ripe in his basket and go for a picnic.

Chuck took his basket to the park. His friend Buck the chicken was waiting for him. Together, they played on the swings and went down the slide. Then, they sat together on the park bench and ate some snacks.

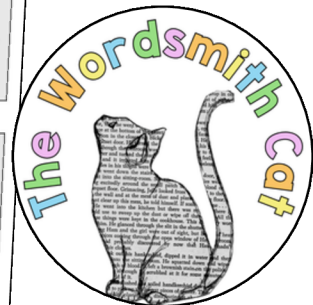

Chuck always had a nice day out and about. At night he came home for a relaxing bath before bed with a big smile on his face.
