What is the legend behind their name?

Think Dive © 2023

Meet the scary-looking nocturnal lemur with freaking fingers. The aye-aye is a gremlin-looking creature found only on the island nation Madagascar. But the lemur is a harmless creature unless you are a larvae. The aye-ayes hunt for food using a special method called 'percussive foraging'. They tap up to eight times on trees with their long middle finger and listen for wood-boring insect larvae moving under the bark.
