The Endurance Challenge

Every spring, Camp Redwood has its famous Endurance Challenge event. It was a day of running, climbing, and teamwork that tested how long students could endure tough conditions.

Maya was nervous. She wasn't sure she could make it. The trail stretched for miles, and the sun blazed overhead. Her friend Ted encouraged her.

"Remember," he said before the event. "You just have to keep going for the duration of the event. Then you can have a big rest after!"

Maya smiled at his words. "I'll see you at the finish line!"

The event began, and Maya and Ted raced off, along with all the other students in the crowd.

Halfway through, Maya slipped in some mud on the trail. She took a deep breath and reminded herself to endure it. Brushing off the mud, she kept going.

The finish line came into sight!

"What great durability," the coach clapped as she crossed the line. Ted cheered and gave her a high-five. Maya was proud of herself for enduring the challenge and finishing the event.
