The Adventures of Lou and Fin

"Now I feel like an investigator," Lou wagged his tail happily. Lou was the leader as he trotted towards the shop, Fin following his friend.

"What will you ask the scientist to invent?" Fin asked.

"Hmm," Lou paused, "maybe a special paintbrush to help me be an artist."

"Or a robot to play music," Lou spun around with excitement as his imagination soared.

"The robot can be a guitarist, and I'll be the drummer!"

"We're nearly there," Fin said with his cheeky smile.

Fluency Passage

Lou and his best friend Fin were walking along the path behind the school, wagging their tails. They spotted the gardener cleaning a machine in the yard, so they trotted over to say hello. The machine had a giant reflector on top.

"Is it a tractor?" Lou asked.

"It looks like a super printer," Fin decided.

"All I know is a clever creator invented it," the gardener said with a wink.

Fin smiled cheekily. "Lou, did you know the inventor is a scientist who can build anything you want?"

Lou bounced up and down. "I want to meet the scientist and become an inventor, too! Where do they live?"

"Go down the main street, past the baker, behind the chemist shop, and you'll find him in the field," the gardener gave directions, grinning with Fin.

"Now I feel like an investigator," Lou wagged his tail happily. Lou was the leader as he trotted towards the shop, Fin following his friend.

"We're nearly there," Fin said with his cheeky smile.

They reached the field. But there were no scientists to be seen. Rather, there was a balloonist blowing up colorful balloons.

"This is even better!" Lou jumped around, chasing the balloons.

"I thought you'd like it!" Fin grinned, running with his friend.
