

PREVIEW FILE

the writing process Posters

table of contents

Directions

Example bulletin board layouts

Writing Process Posters

Our Writing Process Posters

"I'm Working on..." Posters and Name Tags

Credits

directions for use

These materials are meant to support visual learners, specifically in understanding how the steps of the writing process looks for each writing assignment in your classroom. The “Our Writing Process” posters in blue are meant to provide you a place to physically display what your requirements are for each step. You may place a copy of a worksheet on the poster, photocopy a page of your example Interactive Notebook, or take a screenshot of the work in progress on a computer or tablet. The important aspect of these posters is to give students a visual of the actual task. The “I’m Working On” posters and name tags are an optional way for you and students to track progress through the writing process.

Bulletin Board

These posters can be used individually or as separate sets. You can arrange them to suit the needs and space of your classroom and students. A suggested layout is included below.

Student Reference Sheets

Included are student reference sheets to place in binders or Interactive Notebooks.

Writing Instruction Tips

Highlighting: For students who struggle to stay on topic or write to the prompt throughout all steps, have them highlight their main idea and supporting detail in each step before moving on and check to ensure they are the same. For example, if a student brainstorms using a Circle Map they should highlight the main idea and supporting details on their map and then transfer those to a plan. When finished with the plan, they should highlight the main idea and supporting details on the plan and check back to the brainstorm to see if they are the same. Next, when they finish their first draft, they should again highlight the main idea and supporting details and check them against the plan for cohesion.

Use a strategy to break down the prompt, such as RAFT or TAPF. Often, students grab onto a word in the prompt and run with it, but don’t take the time to fully understand the prompt. RAFT, TAPF, and similar strategies are designed to help the student to break it down.

example bulletin board layout

A row of Manga/Anime
style Writing
Process Posters

What will the writing process look like for THIS assignment? It's best to attach a copy of the actual worksheet OR take a picture of your example.

Optional row for students to place their nametag on the step of the writing process they are working on.

Write like
a Champ!

learning
target:

I can write a strong
research paper
using the writing
process.

Add your
rubric here

Peer
Conferencing
Poster

Write in your Learning Target

Remember
to move
your name
tag!

Blank
Speech
bubbles for you to write
in message
to students!

prewriting

break down the prompt
brainstorm
plan

revision

add
remove
move substitute

drafting

organized
ideas from prewriting

the writing process

editing

capitalization
usage
punctuation
spelling

publishing

final draft
formatting
illustrations
cite references

drafting

prewriting

revising

editing

our writing
process:

publishing

the Writing Process

publishing

editing

revising

drafting

prewriting

i am working
on:

rubric

peer conferencing

I like that you used
the word
because
_____.

First...

My favorite part
is _____
because
_____.

learning
target:

thank you for previewing!

Please contact me at activatededucation@gmail.com or via my store Q&A if you have any questions, concerns, or feedback.
Thank you!

Click for my TpT
Store!

Click for my Pinterest boards

Other engaging products you may be interested in:

Graphics in this product:

Aileen Miracle, Illumismart, Grade One Snapshots, Teaching Super Power, Jena Hudson at Sew Much Music, A Little Peace of Africa, Learning Yay, and Fun for Learning.