A palace fit for a king

Versailles wasn't built in a day - it took many years to get it exactly the way it was envisioned. But when it was finished, it became the envy of nobility everywhere. The court of the king at Versailles was THE place to be if you hoped to be successful.

A marvel for all

The palace itself was the envy of many European monarchs, but the hall of mirrors was a stupendous addition. What was originally an outdoor terrace became the location for entertainment and royal ceremonies. It took a while for construction to finish, but it was well worth the wait.
