

A collection of cartoon illustrations of various objects, each featuring a small heart. The objects include a potted plant, a monkey hanging from a branch, a rock, a mug, a potted plant, a mitten, a potted plant, a bird, and a worm.

A close-up photograph of a hand squeezing a purple stress ball. In the background, three other stress balls are visible: a yellow one, a green one, and a clear one. The stress balls are made of a soft, pliable material and are designed to provide tactile feedback and reduce stress.

Tasks that require that children apply memorized procedures to solve a problem require one type of thinking, while open-ended tasks require a very different kind of thinking. Both are important for developing fluency and understanding of math.
