RED RIBBON WEEK

Announcements!

Hey there! It's time for our Red Ribbon Week announcement, and today, we want to talk about your "Why" for staying drug-free. Drugs and alcohol can be really bad for your body and mind. They can make you lose interest in things you love and hurt your relationships with the people you care about. They can make you sick!

Today is the start of Red Ribbon Week, a special time when we focus on staying healthy and making good choices! Each year, usually during the last full week in October, schools and communities across America celebrate Red Ribbon Week. A long time ago, a brave Special Agent named Enrique Camarena fought against drugs and even gave his life to keep people safe. We wear red ribbons to remember his hard work and to keep making smart, healthy choices.

During this week, we focus on healthy living and learn about dangers of alcohol, tobacco, and drugs, especially for our growing bodies and minds. You make choices every day, from morning till bedtime. Some choices are easy, but others can be tough. Even the small choices can have a big impact on you. So, let's all make healthy choices every single day! Stay awesome!

... is all about goals. ... and work hard to make it happen. ... to drugs and alcohol, the best way to stay away from them is by having great reasons to say "NO." Having that don't involve drugs is the perfect reason to say "NO!"

Maybe you want to become a famous athlete or a video game designer. A wish can become a goal if you write it out! Be clear and write exactly what you want to do, the steps to reach your goal, how long it might take, and who can help you. Most importantly, place that written goal where you can see it and be reminded of what you want to achieve. Tell others about your plans and share your successes along the way. You have an amazing future ahead, and you can make any dream come true! Just remember, saying "NO" to drugs and alcohol keeps all the doors of possibilities wide open! You can do it!
