The Adventures of Lou and Fin

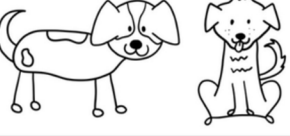

Lou wagged his tail. The treats looked tasty! He spun around so many times that he crashed into the shop window! Lou fell to the ground in embarrassment.

Lou fell to the ground in embarrassment.

Fin laughed in amazement. "What a funny accomplishment!"

"I think I deserve plenty of treats now!" Lou thought it was a fair assessment as he wobbled upright.

Fin laughed again and nodded.

One morning, Lou and his best friend Fin needed to go to the shops. They trotted along the pavement together, deciding what to buy.

"Are you sure we need more treats?" Lou and Fin were having a disagreement about how many treats they should eat a day. Lou thought they should have lots more, but Fin felt their diet needed adjustment.

"Well," Fin knew the treats were tasty, "maybe we can come to an agreement. We should exercise more each time we have a treat. It will be better for our development."

Lou wasn't sure about the exercise idea, but he wanted more treats. "What type of exercises?" He asked before making a commitment to the plan.

Fin looked at him with a cheeky smile. "Well, did you know that spinning around in circles is the best exercise?" They stopped in front of a poster with an advertisement for yummy treats. "Try it now!" Fin said with encouragement.

"I think I deserve plenty of treats now!" Lou thought it was a fair assessment as he wobbled upright. Fin laughed again and nodded. The two dog friends went to the store and bought lots of yummy treats.

"How about we walk home the long way through the park to get exercise?" Lou suggested.

"That sounds like a good arrangement!" Fin agreed, and they both enjoyed a treat while they walked.
