ANZAC Biscuits

History of the ANZAC biscuit

"The army biscuit, also known as an Anzac wafer or Anzac tile, is essentially a long shelf-life, hard tack biscuit, eaten as a substitute for bread. Unlike bread, though, the biscuits are very, very hard. Some soldiers preferred to grind them up and eat as porridge."

Father John Fahey, a Catholic padre serving on Gallipoli, was unimpressed with army biscuits. He wrote, "the man who invented the army biscuit was an unmitigated rascal. As an eatable there is little to choose between it and a seasoned jarrah board."

The popular Anzac biscuit is a traditional, eggless sweet biscuit. Ingredients include rolled oats, sugar, plain flour, coconut, butter, golden syrup or treacle, bi-carbonate of soda and boiling water."

THE ODE

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old:
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun
and in the morning,
We will remember them.

This is the fourth stanza from Laurence Binyon's poem For the Fallen. Referred to as the Ode of Remembrance, it was first published in The Times of London in September 1914 and has been incorporated into the ritual of remembrance in many countries.

RESOURCE MATERIAL FROM THE 'SHRINE OF REMEMBRANCE'
<http://www.shrineofremembrance.com.au/education/resources/anzac-day-activity-resources/primary-schools/education-program-anzac-day2>

UNIT NOTES
These materials help to develop student understanding about events that happened at ANZAC Cove and on the Gallipoli Peninsula in 1915. As well as developing an appreciation of the difficult and harsh fighting and living conditions, students investigate the ANZAC Spirit or tradition and seek reasons for its continuing significance as one expression of being Australian. These materials are presented in three parts:

- Understanding ANZAC and Gallipoli, which includes historical background and student activities.
- Understanding Commemoration Ceremonies, which includes background information about commemoration ceremonies for ANZAC Day in Australia and in other places. A selection of activities helps students to make sense of these ceremonies and suggest ways in which to develop a ceremony appropriate for their school.
- Suggested Resources. Select materials and activities appropriate for your classes.
