The son of Napoléon?

The history museum at the local university is hosting an exposition on the life of Napoleon. Everyone is excited to see the artifacts from Napoleon's life. But there's a problem - a man approached the museum and claimed to be Napoleon's descendant - and that the artifacts should rightfully be his! He brought a box of papers with him, and in that box was a smaller, locked box. The man says that the proof is inside the locked box, but he hasn't been able to unlock it because he doesn't know the codes. Can you find the correct keys to unlock the box and see what proof the man has to support his claims?

Napoleon

Put the codes to unlock the locks on this form. If you are correct, the locks will open and you will be able to find the "proof" inside the box!
